*I recently started thinking about things you'd never see or hear on Murder, She Wrote... which reminded me of a list called "Top 10 Lines You'll Never Hear On Star Trek: The Next Generation." So, using that as my inspiration and guide, I wrote this little list of the top ten lines you'll never hear on Murder, She Wrote. And just for the record, Number One is my personal favorite. *Grin

10. Seth: No cookies, Jess. I'm on a diet.

9. Mort: Wow, it's amazing how I actually did something without people comparing me to Amos.

8. Random Suspect: J.B. Fletcher at our party? Don't invite her! Where she goes, dead bodies follow!

7. Jessica's Publisher: Another murder mystery? Jeez, woman, can't you write fairy tales for once?

6. Random Movie Producer: Mrs. Fletcher, I promise we're going to stick to the text of your book and not turn it into some X-rated, bloody-gory Hollywood ballyhoo.

5. Seth: I can't give objective medical opinion. How can I when Madame Detective keeps making diagnoses for me?

4. Mort: We don't need your help, Mrs. F. We actually solved the mystery and caught the killer without looking like a bunch of incompetent morons.

3. Jessica: No, I can't solve another mystery. I have a book to write, a deadline to meet, classes to teach, and a life to live, in case you haven't noticed!

2. Jessica: Does anybody find it weird that I'm always present at every single murder and nobody ever thinks the worst of me?

And finally, the number one line you'll never hear on Murder, She Wrote...

1. Jessica: I give up. I'm done. I've had it. I have no freaking clue who the killer is and I really don't care.
