

Do You Want to Solve a Mystery?

—MinervaDeannaBond

7.15.14

Is it possible to combine Murder, She Wrote with Disney's Frozen? Yes, it is! In this parody of "Do You Want to Build a Snowman," Jessica asks the audience if they want to solve a mystery with her - which she kind of did, if you think about it. She does this for two verses, and the third verse is Seth talking to Jessica about how he's there for her when all the murder and mayhem get to her.

P.S. If you haven't yet seen Frozen, listen to "Do You Want to Build a Snowman" - you'll be able to sing along more easily.

Do you want to solve a mystery?
Come on, we can't delay
They've found a body on the shore
A life no more
The killer's gone astray
We've got to question suspects
And nose around
Find clues that will solve this crime
Do you want to solve a mystery?
Come on, we've got to solve this mystery
Just in time...

Do you want to solve a mystery?
Who stabbed the corpse that's in the hall?
I think Seth's found the knife that caused the wound
Mort Metzger's found a secret passage in the wall
The husband wanted money
From his late wife's will
Our who, what, when, where and why...

Jess, I know you're tired
You need to type up your book by ten
Been solving murders and revealing truth

Been playing super sleuth
You're 'bout done in
Come here and let me hug you
You can talk to me
I will be here for you
You don't have to solve a mystery...